

Emma Rodriguez was planning a holiday in Barcelona, Spain, during the first week of May 2026. Unfortunately, an unexpected medical situation forced the trip to be canceled on 4 May 2026, resulting in non-refundable travel and accommodation expenses amounting to €1,240. To recover part of the loss, a reimbursement request was submitted a few days later along with supporting documents, including hotel invoices, airline booking confirmations, and a physician's statement. Following the review process, €1,050 was approved for reimbursement while the remaining amount fell outside the coverage guidelines. The request has successfully passed initial validation and is currently awaiting final payment processing.
